7. [] Met with James Calloway, Chief Counsel, Senate Appropriations Committee, and gave him a copy of the Senate Select Committee on Presidential Campaign Activities subpoena and a briefing on developments so the Committee would not be blindsided. Calloway had received a call from Michael Madigan of the Select Committee staff, and I explained who he was and that call no doubt concerned the status of the disposition of the Agency's sanitization recommendations and substantive comments on the Baker report delivered to the Committee on 29 April 1974. Calloway agreed this problem is between Senate committees and might counter Madigan's query asking about the status of compliance with Chairman McClellan's request to the Select Committee for all material and transcripts developed by Baker on CIA.

Calloway said he had turned over the transcripts of Ehrlichman, Haldeman, Cushman and Malloy to the Special Prosecutor but might have to go the Senate floor for a resolution since it involves the release of classified information. I assured him that from a security standpoint it was alright with us, and told him we had provided the Special Prosecutor with sanitized versions of the Malloy transcript. The Special Prosecutor has requested a complete set of the Committee's transcripts and Calloway asked if we could prepare a set for him as only he and McConnell are cleared to handle the material and for them to do it would be a very heavy burden. I said we would try and he said it would be deeply appreciated.

I also reviewed with Calloway the three volumes of material provided to Rodino and the Special Prosecutor and reminded him we are providing all of the material we have to the Rodino Committee and the Special Prosecutor.
